The Rainforest Foundation UK (RFUK) exists to uphold the rights of the world’s rainforest communities and to champion their rights, both locally and globally. In order to achieve this mission, we have gained the trust of many of the world’s rainforest communities, our partners who work in these locations, and of the people and institutions who support our work.

RFUK expects its staff and representatives to adhere to high standards of conduct and behaviour in their professional lives, including free time or rest periods undertaken as part of a defined RFUK mission or assignment. For the purposes of RFUK’s Code of Conduct, the word staff is used throughout the document to refer to any individual representing or acting on behalf of RFUK, regardless of their legal employment status with the organisation. The minimum standards expected are described in this Code of Conduct; however, this list is not exhaustive, nor will all of its parameters be applicable in all contexts. RFUK expects all individuals who represent the organisation to use good judgement in applying the Code to their specific context, and to behave and act in accordance with and spirit of this Code. Familiarisation on the Code’s contents will be provided during staff induction periods. However, the Code can be updated at any point, and any changes will be communicated to staff in a timely manner. Unfamiliarity with updated content cannot be claimed as a defence for violating any of aspects of the Code.

This Code of Conduct applies to all RFUK staff and representatives (including but not limited to trustees, ambassadors and volunteers) equally. Its purpose is to protect the well-being of anyone who comes into contact with the organisation and to outline the expected behaviours of staff and representatives. Adherence to the Code of Conduct is non-negotiable, and violating the Code may result in disciplinary action, as outlined in the RFUK Staff Manual and/or severance of your relationship with RFUK.

RFUK acknowledges that staff have distinct professional and private lives. However, external stakeholders may not make such a distinction, particularly if the staff member has publicly identified themselves as representing RFUK. In such instances the actions and behaviours of staff could endanger the well-being or damage the reputation of colleagues and/or RFUK. Staff should be mindful of their actions and behaviour at all times and endeavour not to engage in activities that could result in harm to the organisation. In extreme cases, violation of this Code during personal time could oblige RFUK to take disciplinary action.

The content of this Code of Conduct, as listed below, has been developed in adherence to the legal and regulatory context which RFUK operates in and acknowledges best practice and standards set by other organisations similar to us. More importantly, it is grounded in our organisation’s values, mission statement, policies, and reflects an expectation that RFUK staff will act and behave in a way that befits the RFUK’s ethos.

i The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child states that a child is anyone under the age of 18. RFUK applies this global standard to cover the actions and activities of its representatives regardless of their location where an incident takes place. This age of consent is consistent with DfID/Bond expectations and other codes of conduct published by NGOs headquartered in the United Kingdom.
